RECTOR'S LETTER

Taking Christmas into 2016

It was a few days after Christmas. A mother was busy cleaning up the den- putting everything away and taking the tree down. Her son came in, saw what she was doing, and asked, "Mom, what are you doing?" She said, "I'm putting all our Christmas stuff away." Then he asked, "Why are you doing that?" She answered, "So everything will be back to normal again." He looked at her and said, "Mom, I don't want things back to normal again."

Many people have settled into the mind-set that Christmas is over despite the fact that the Christmas season continues through January 5th. And with that mind-set comes a need to pack everything up and get it out of the way- "to return to normal." But, I wonder if we rush away from Christmas too quickly. I wonder if, in the process of cleaning up after Christmas, we remove it from our lives altogether. What if, after Christmas, we could keep life from getting back to normal again? What if we could hang onto Christmas and take it with us into the days and months ahead in the new year-2016?

We can do that. Oh, I don't mean that everything is going to be perfect or always go our way. Nor will we be able to escape the same daily routines, the same schedules, and the same responsibilities we have had to struggle with before Christmas. But there ought to be something different about us because of Christmas. There ought to be something different about us because we have seen (once again) "the star of wonder" and heard "the angels sing" and "the cry of the Babe in a manger." There ought to be something different about us because our hearts have once again been strangely warmed by the reminder that God has bent low to the earth.

Perhaps one thing we can do to take Christmas into the new year is to keep Jesus as the object of our devotion. The magi of Matthew's Gospel traveled from far away- across deserts, over mountains, and across rivers because they were devoted. The object of their devotion was the new King. Christmas is the celebration of the birth of the One born to be King of all creation. Take him with you into the new year- keep Jesus as the object of your devotion. To show their devotion to the newborn King, the magi presented him with gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh- all expensive treasures in that time and in that part of the world. The magi brought these gifts (their best) to the one they worshiped....the one to whom they were devoted.

Would you dare to give Jesus the best you have....the most expensive thing....the best part of you? And if you give him the best that you have, what might that be? What might you be able to give him in the year ahead? Could you give him your complete devotion?

Each year, I leave at least one Christmas ornament or decoration out when packing the rest away. It's usually one of the figures from my St. Nicholas (Bishop of Myra) collection. I do this in part to remind me that Christmas is not just one day or one 12 day season. Christmas is a lifetime. That ornament is a reminder that Jesus walks with me everyday and that I can bring him and Christmas into this new year and any new year. Perhaps you could do that, too, this year.

Peace and love,

John+
